

Self Reflection

Improving workload management

What kind of information do you need regularly to ensure adequate management of the workload within the team? Are the tools currently employed sufficient to collect and analyse that information?

Would switching to a new tool be a reasonable investment of time and resources? What would the benefits be?

